ABOUT ACNEM

The Australasian College of Nutritional and Environmental Medicine Inc (ACNEM) is a non-profit medical college established in 1982, offering postgraduate training and education for doctors and other graduate healthcare professionals. ACNEM offers individual learning modules and a more formal education pathway providing practitioners with an option to undertake structured training to gain ACNEM Certification and Fellowship.

Nutritional and Environmental Medicine (NEM) seeks to understand and identify underlying causes of dysfunction and disease by focusing on a patient's diet, lifestyle and surrounding environment. This specialised stream of medical practice focuses on the complex interplay of dietary choice, lifestyle behaviours and the built environment and how these impact on human physiology and biochemistry.

MEMBERSHIP BENEFITS

Membership provides practitioners with advocacy, collegiality, networking and support from a peer group of like-minded professionals via events, social media groups, and discussion forums. Importantly, your membership supports the work of the College to establish nutritional and environmental medicine as core to good clinical practice.

Join now and receive some great benefits:

DISCOUNTS ON TRAINING, EDUCATION AND CONFERENCE

Receive discounts off our training modules, including online and face-to-face training events, and a reduced registration fee to our annual Nutrition in Medicine Conference.

FREE MONTHLY ONLINE LECTURE

ACNEM Online Learning offers the convenience and accessibility of viewing lectures exactly as they were filmed at recent face-to-face training courses. A new lecture, selected from ACNEM Online Learning, will be made available to Members each month.
