Are you interested in extending your clinical skills with relevant, industry specific training in nutritional and environmental medicine?

Come along to the next ACNEM Primary Modules training event and get started!

The Australasian College of Nutritional and Environmental Medicine (ACNEM) has been providing post graduate level education to doctors and healthcare professionals for over 30 years. ACNEM delivers independent, highly credible and up-to-date information on the most relevant clinical topics, with an aim of transforming the current medical paradigm to one that is preventative and patient-centred.

"Even basic nutritional advice can have powerful health effects for our clients - more advanced advice can be sourced by referrals if necessary." – Primary delegate (2019).

Perhaps you've already done the Primary and would like a refresher - did you know that the content has been completely re-written and revitalised? ACNEM has new presenters, new content and a new approach.
